He added: “This was achieved due to the rapid expansion of our Omni model, including opening of online operations in 52 Russian cities last year. We can admit that the Omni model works successfully as we enjoyed more than double growth in our online based sales in the past quarter. I would like to highlight also the increasing penetration of the pickup in store service which now stands for more than half of the overall online based sales. It gives us a very good opportunity to interact further with our customers and to unlock some additional opportunities by attracting people to our stores”.
